DECEMBER

Birthstone of the Month - Turquoise

Turquoise is prized for its beautiful pale blue color and black veins. First brought to Europe from Turkey (for which the mineral is named), turquoise is mined around the world, from Iran and Egypt to the southwestern United States. Since its discovery, many cultures have considered turquoise to be a holy stone or talisman. The Aztecs believed it would change color with the wearer's health, while the Apache thought it would increase an archer's precision. Turquoise is even a part of the architecture of the Taj Mahal and other famous structures.

Flower of the Month - Holly

December's flower is the joyful holly plant. Its bright red berries and deep green leaves have come to symbolize the holiday season. Holly also symbolizes truth and protection and is commonly used to make wreaths and other decorations. It grows well in temperate and subtropical climates. Holly berries can be red, brown, black, green, or yellow; they are slightly toxic to humans but can be safely eaten by birds. Some types of holly leaves are used to make tea.
